IMMUNITY FROM SEIZURE

Renoir and Love

03 Oct 2026 - 31 Jan 2027

The National Gallery, London, Trafalgar Square, London, WC2N 5DN

The National Gallery is able to provide immunity from seizure under part 6 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. This Act provides protection from seizure for cultural objects from abroad on loan to temporary exhibitions in approved museums and galleries in the UK.

The conditions are:

The object is usually kept outside the UK

It is not owned by a person resident in the UK

Its import does not contravene any import regulations

It is brought to the UK for public display in a temporary exhibition at a museum or gallery

The borrowing museum or gallery is approved under the Act

The borrowing museum has published information about the object

For further enquiries, please contact information@nationalgallery.org.uk

Protection under the Act is sought for the objects listed in this document, which are intended to form part of the forthcoming exhibition, Renoir and Love.

Copyright Notice: no images from these pages should be reproduced without permission.

 Note that this object has an incomplete provenance for the years 1933-1945, however, it is certain that Hugo Simon was still the owner in September 1933 and in May 1934 when he deposited the painting at the Kunsthaus Zurich. The Kunsthaus Zurich subsequently returned the painting to Hugo Simon in July 1935. In addition, as Paris was not occupied at the time of the Perls-Knoedler sale in 1936, there is no risk of spoliation under National Socialist jurisdiction as Paris was not yet occupied, nor could the work have been a forced sale to fund Hugo Simon's flight from Paris in 1940 as he was no longer the owner then. Furthermore, the work has been on continuous public display at the Norton Simon Museum since 1968 and exhibited internationally.
